RIVAL PIANO DEALERS HAVE DUEL IN DOORWAY

C. E. James and J. T. Goholston
Fire at Each Other in Athens Store.

Athens, Ga., December 31.—(Special.)—In an altercation over a piano sale here today a pistol duel was fought between C. E. James and J. T. Goholston, rival piano dealers in the door of the former's place of business—which is but twenty steps from the place of business of the latter.

Goholston, it is said, opened the door of his competitor and began firing. James had been warned of his coming and was ready with his pistol and returned the fire hitting Goholston twice, one ball shattering an arm and the other passing through the skin of the shoulder.

The photograph booth of the James place was filled with women, who heard the shot, but who did not know of the duel till later. James gave himself up, he stated he believed Goholston was drinking.

THE PASSING OF 1913 ALL HAIL TO 1914

- ¶ Years write their records and on they go.
- ¶ 1913 has bid adieu to the world.
- ¶ Those who have used it well, it in turn has used well.
- ¶ Its record for us stands the very best in the many bright chapters of our commercial history.
- ¶ We necessarily feel that elation that comes to one who in going forward experiences the rise essential to the next step; and we enter 1914 all aglow with the enthusiasm of greater purpose.
- ¶ In this connection, we desire to take the opportunity of thanking our friends for their fine co-operation and hearty support; and wishing for each and all, abundant success and happiness for the good New Year.

Overland

$950

Overland means thrift. The Overland car is the ideal car for the young business man.

His older associates will mark him for a careful business man, conserving his resources if he drives his own car of efficient but inexpensive make.

The young man in business requires a car for many reasons; but he must use great care in not choosing one that all men are eating up revenue every time the gas is pumped.

Drive an Overland. It is racy, aristocratic, inexpensive to buy and less expensive to operate; yet efficient, fast, alive and active.

COTTON MARKET STILL NERVOUS

Early Advance Followed by Sharp Break, But Closing Rallyes Made the General Close Steady.

New York, December 31.—The cotton market was nervous and unsettled today. Trading was restricted to moderate extent, by holiday considerations, but was rather more active than in usual preceding the new year's adjournment, and the irregular movement of prices probably reflected the evening up of a considerable interest for tomorrow, or pending a better view of the market situation. A sharp advance followed an early decline, but prices recovered and closed steady, but not without a slight upward movement. The market was somewhat unsettled, following rumors that the government had developed in retail trade prices, and active movement in the market was somewhat restricted.
